

CONFERENCE HOLDS FINAL SESSIONS THIS WEEKEND ANNUAL MED-PLUMBERS' BALL AT ARMOURY TONIGHT

Kenney's Band Provides Music

*Corsages, Programs
Included in Price
Of Ticket*

The fifth annual Med-Plumbers' Ball will take place tonight at the Sir Arthur Currie Memorial Gymnasium to the music of Mart Kenney's orchestra and the songs of Norma Locke. Heading the list of patrons are Chancellor Morris C. Wilson, Principal F. Cyril James, Lt.-Col. J. M. Morris, M.C., V.D., Lt.-Commander V. C. Wynne-Edwards and Mr. Eric A. Leslie. Also among the patrons will be representatives of the faculties of Medicine and Engineering and from Toronto and Queen's Universities.

Mart Kenney and His Western Gentlemen will provide the music this evening and featured as vocalist will be Norma Locke, Kenney's recently acquired protegee.

Dancing Begins At 10 p.m. Dancing will begin at 10 p.m. and continue until 3 a.m. with a pause at midnight for supper. Formal dress will be worn and permission to wear uniforms has been granted to members of the UNTD and COTC.

Corsages will not be allowed at the Ball, their use having been forbidden in wartime as an economic measure. However, flowers will be obtainable at the dance.

TABLE RESERVATIONS
The list of Table Reservations will be on hand at the entrance to the Gymnasium floor to enable parties in locating their tables.

PATRONS
The patrons of the Medical Faculty will be: Dean J. C. Meakins, Dr. John R. Fraser, Dr. E. S. Mills, Dr. Fraser B. Gurd, Dr. A. D. Campbell and Dr. H. F. Mosely. Those of the Engineering Faculty will be: Dean J. J. O'Neill, Prof. J. U. MacEwan, Professor J. M. Holden, Professor A. R. Roberts, Professor G. A. Wallace, and Professor R. E. Jamieson. There will also be representatives from Toronto and Queen's Universities present.

Everyone is reminded that no one is to be allowed into the mess of C.O.T.C. except committee guests and patrons and is warned that this ruling will be enforced.

Program similar to those at last year's dance will be given out. It is pointed out that these souvenirs together with the corsages will be included in the cost of the ticket.

Prof. Halecki To Speak Today

*Will Be Guest
Of History, Sociology, And Economics Depts.*

"The Foundation of Polish Democracy" will be the subject of an address by Professor Oscar Halecki, when the noted historian speaks to a meeting sponsored by the History, Sociology and Economics Departments in Moyses Hall at noon today.

Born in Austria in 1891, Prof. Halecki is a graduate of the University of Vienna. Later he received a degree of Ph.D. from the Jagiellonian University in Cracow, where he lectured in History for three years. In 1918 Prof. Halecki was appointed Professor of History at the University of Warsaw, at which post he remained for 21 years. For the last eight years of that period he was also professor of International Relations at the Warsaw School of Political Science. On two occasions he was also Dean of the Faculty of Arts at the University of Warsaw. 1929 marked Professor Halecki's first visit to the Students of McGill, — The fifth wartime session is now coming to a close, and at last victory is in sight. Soon will emerge the dawn of peace and order out of the present world chaos.

McGill University, one of the oldest and noblest institutions of learning in North America, possesses a student body that, with every succeeding year, embraces more and more representatives of the nations of the world, becoming indeed a League of Nations within itself.

A centre of learning, to be effective, cannot harbour intolerance and mistrust if it desires to succeed in preparing students to be the future leaders amongst their fellow-men.

Today, on the campus, there are numerous clubs and societies providing the student with the necessary

First may I express my sincere and wholehearted appreciation to those who supported my nomination for the Presidency of the Students' Society. I pledge myself, if elected, to do everything possible to prove worthy of their trust and do my utmost for the welfare of the student body.

In election campaigns the usual procedure is to make a series of promises. This apparently has a pleasing effect on the electors, but regardless of this I would like to stress experience rather than promises. Experience forms a sound basis for judgment of a candidate.

Since the presidency involves a seat on the Students' Athletic Council and the Advisory Athletics Board, a knowledge of the Athletic organization and the men who comprise this organization would seem essential. I would advocate the con-

Two-Day Period Set for Parleys

*All General Sessions
In Moyses Hall;
Times Given*

The program of the University Conference has been planned to extend over a two-day period — tomorrow and Sunday, March 3 and 4 — and includes four separate sessions, all of which be held on the campus and all of which will be entirely open to the student body at large.

Places of Meetings

The general assemblies on Saturday morning, Saturday evening, and Sunday afternoon will be held in Moyses Hall, while the individual committee meetings on Saturday afternoon will be distributed between the McGill Union and the Royal Victoria College. The list of the respective rooms which these committees will occupy appears in column 8 on this page.

A detailed time-schedule of the Conference week-end follows:

OPENING SESSION

Saturday, March 3

Shortly after 10:30 a.m. in Moyses Hall the Conference will be opened by Victor C. Goldbloom, Chairman.

At 10:45 a.m., the official opening address will be given by John J. Costigan, President of the Students' Society.

At 11:00 a.m., Edward J. Phelan, Acting Director of the International Labor Office, will speak on the organization of the post-war world. Mr. Phelan will be introduced by Professor J. P. Day, Chairman of the Department of Economics.

At 12:00 noon, the Honorable C. D. Howe, Federal Minister of Reconstruction, will speak on Canadian post-war planning. Mr. Howe will be introduced by Dr. J. J. O'Neill, Dean of the Faculty of Engineering.

COMMITTEE SESSION

At 2:30 p.m., the nine committees will meet individually for the completion and final discussion and revision of their respective reports. (See listing in column 8.)

Cables Received From Overseas

*Student Organizations
In British Isles
Greet McGill*

McGill's University Conference on "Canada and the Post-War World" has drawn attention from student groups in distant and near-by corners of the world. Invitations have been issued to some twenty universities in the United States and Canada, and the story of the Conference has been published in Metropolitan newspapers and telegraphed all along the chain of the Canadian University Press.

Three cablegrams have arrived from student organization in London, England, extending greetings and good wishes for the success of the Conference, and expressing pride in the enterprise of Canadian students in undertaking such a role in national affairs.

The first, which arrived on February 23, came from the National Union of Students of England and Wales, a body which has previously been in cordial correspondence with the Students' Executive Council of this university. The second, on February 27, bore the signature of the World Youth Council, one of the largest student organizations on the other side of the Atlantic. The third, a day later, was from the Teheran Crimea University Labour Federation.

Two delegates from Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vt., are expected to arrive here this evening, and will remain for the period of the Conference as guests of the Students' Executive Council.

This Week Last Of Preparation

*Committees End Work
With Meetings
Saturday*

Dr. David L. Thomson, Dean of the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research and Professor of Biochemistry, will give the closing address of the University Conference at its final session on Sunday afternoon, following on the successive reading of the reports of the nine committees which compose the Conference.

Final Meetings

During this present week, the final pre-Conference meetings of the committees have been held, with several of the groups holding two and some three sessions in an effort to complete their reports in advance of the final day. These reports, or condensed versions which will be read at the Conference, will be used by Dean Thomson for reference in his address.

It is the intention of the central Administrative Committee to publish the full reports together with the actual proceedings of the Conference, so that McGill may have a permanent record of its first such undertaking, and also so that copies may be sent to sister universities in the United States and Canada.

Committee Programs

The individual committee sessions tomorrow afternoon in the Union and in R.V.C. will actually be the final events in the respective series of meetings which each group has been holding since early in January. Some of the committees have invited guest speakers for this meeting, but information on this point is not available at the time of going to press; others have found it necessary to devote it to the completion of a report.

Film Program Follows Theme

*Topics of Discussion
Are Supplemented
In Pictures*

Through the co-operation of the National Film Board in Ottawa, a special program of recent documentary films has been selected for the Conference, covering and supplementing a great many of the specific topics with which the component committees have dealt.

"Universities at War" is a survey of the contributions of colleges and their students to the present war effort and to the foundations of an improved world. "Welcome, Soldier," an account of the government system of aiding returned men to the re-establishment of their lives, is directly applicable to the work of the Veteran Rehabilitation Committee, and is of special interest since the organization it describes is the work of the ministry headed by the Honorable C. D. Howe, chief speaker of the Conference's opening session tomorrow morning.

"Highland Doctor," a British-made film, explains the government-subsidized medical service which covers the sparsely populated rural areas of the Highlands and Islands of Scotland. "New Plans for the Land" is a lesson of profitable agriculture in terms of Canadian fields and Canadian produce. "U.N. R.R.A.," another picture dealing directly with a topic of Conference

Nine Committees To Give Reports

*Dean O'Neill, Dr. Day
Will Introduce Speakers*

Culminating a period of many weeks of investigation, research, analysis, and discussion, the University Conference will bring its nine committees together this weekend for a final two-day session, finishing on Sunday afternoon with the presentation of the nine resulting reports.

Guests of Honour

The Honorable Clarence D. Howe, Federal Minister of Reconstruction, and Edward J. Phelan, Acting Director of the International Labor Office, will be the chief speakers of the opening session tomorrow morning in Moyses Hall. Mr. Phelan will speak at approximately 11:00 a.m., while Mr. Howe, who is flying from Ottawa in order to be present at the Conference, is expected to speak shortly before noon.

Mr. Howe's topic will be the future of the Canadian nation, considered in terms of the Dominion's post-war problems and her proposed schemes for their solution. Mr. Phelan will undertake a broader prospect, that of the organization of the world for efficient international co-operation and a permanent peace.

Dr. J. J. O'Neill, Dean of the Faculty of Engineering, will introduce the Honorable Mr. Howe; Professor J. P. Day, Chairman of the Department of Economics and Political Science, will introduce Mr. Phelan. John J. Costigan, President of the Students' Society, who will give the official opening address, will be introduced by Victor C. Goldbloom, Chairman of the Conference, who will conduct the opening session.

It was announced last night that both Chancellor Morris W. Wilson and Principal F. Cyril James would be unable to attend the Conference, the Chancellor because of ill health and the Principal because of a previous commitment takes him out of the city at this time. It was understood that a special message from the chancellor will be read at the opening session of the Conference.

No Pipe Dreams

The University Conference which is being held tomorrow and Sunday has long been planned by the Student's Executive Council. Every year since the outbreak of the war the Council has proposed to hold just such a conference. This year, with the end of the war nearing in the eyes of even the pessimist, the Council put its plans into action, and for the last two months student groups, organized under a central committee, have discussed the post-war plans for our nation.

These groups have discussed in detail, and done research on, such problems as those facing education, the veterans, health, and labor. They have considered carefully the obstacles to be overcome in obtaining the long-dreamed-of "better world" and have formulated plans and practical methods by which this world may be obtained, at least in Canada. The results of these discussions will be presented to the student body as a whole on Sunday.

But student opinion alone will not be presented, for on Saturday and on Sunday morning speakers such as the Hon. C. D. Howe, Mr. E. J. Phelan, along with many prominent members of our city and our college, will present outside opinions on the many topics which students have had under discussion.

Since the whole of post-war reconstruction cannot be adequately covered by a general meeting, the small groups that have been working in the last month will hold individual sessions to which students who have not previously attended the conferences may go. At these small group-meetings speakers will talk on the immediate subject with which that group is concerned, and students will be enabled to obtain some idea of exactly what the situation in Canada will be following the war.

This Conference is not merely an opportunity for University students to air their pipe-dreams or grudges. It is a working plan by which the students of McGill will be able to offer advice to aid in solving the problems of the post-war world, and through which they may obtain some knowledge of just what shape that world is tending to take. To stand by with a shrug of the shoulders and say that your opinion will make no difference, or that you have no interest in what will happen, as long as you have your three meals a day, indicates not only indifference but an escapist attitude which can only lead to future war and destruction.

Professor Halecki

Poland's position in the era following World War II is one which has been under more discussion than that of any other European country. As a country which has been subjected to oppression and dominance from its neighbors to east and west throughout its history, as a country which has no clearly outlined borders and no outlet to the sea save The Corridor, and as a country which has suffered the attacks of both the Allies and the enemy, Poland's post-war position has become dubious, to say the least.

Too little is known by the more virile nations of Poland's struggle to maintain her democracy and independence. The heroic efforts of her pitifully small and ill-equipped armies at the outbreak of the German aggression on Poland revealed to the world conclusively that here was a nation strong in her demand for liberty, willing to sacrifice everything for that ideal, but blatantly unprogressive in the modern world which surrounds her. Occupied with her own inward attempts to develop her country and her people, Poland was sacrificed to the brutally strong industrialist to the west, and equally so to the overwhelming and sprawling power to the east. In a situation such as this, the demand for freedom made by the Poles with the support of the Allies, becomes precarious in the extreme.

Yet the stories of the Polish people defending their rights with cavalry against tanks, traditions against machines, bespeaks an unrelenting attitude on the part of these people towards the maintenance of their ideal. What is this

by M.H.E.

Looking strikingly smart in the uniform of de Gaulle, the three young French Underground members who visited McGill yesterday afternoon have come to Canada to tell their story and that of the famous resistance force, the Maquis.

Nelly Bayot, 23, the attractive young woman in the party, found herself deeply engaged in resistance activities as early as November, 1940, when she was arrested at a student demonstration at Nantes. Released by the French police, she became a liaison agent, and later secretary to the regional chief of "L'Armee Secrete". Escaping from the Gestapo, she was to further carry on her work as private secretary to the French Forces of the Interior. She was a student of law before the war.

A student at the University of Paris, handsome 22-year-old Denis Roussel played a very great role in circulating the publications of the underground press among students and in recruiting reinforcements for the French Forces of the Interior. He participated in several student demonstrations, and during the insurrection in Paris which preceded the entry of the American forces, he aided in the seizure of university centres occupied by the enemy. He was in a group of students who stole the lists of students who were marked to be sent for slave labor into Germany.

Third in the group is the 35-year-old Lieut. Edouard Regnier who was made a German prisoner when taken with some other French officers in August of 1940. Eight days later he had escaped, disguised as a civilian; and five days after his escape was to begin his underground life when he heard that 20 English soldiers were hiding in a nearby swamp. With the aid of an English citizen of Paris, he was able to help them escape to unoccupied territory.

His organization was discovered and a month afterwards he, himself, was arrested. Tried by a Nazi tribunal and condemned to death, he was able to escape while being transferred from one jail to another, and returned to his resistance work. Several secret missions to various sections of France followed, and Regnier was to serve in sabotage work against the German forces of occupation.

At the time of the liberation of this country, Lieut. Regnier led a group of Frenchmen against German soldiers at the Ecole Militaire.

The fourth member of the group is Pere Milville, born of French-Canadian parents and a member of the Oblate Order, who was attached to the seminary at Brosse Montcaux when France was over-run and who decided to remain to share the dangers and hardships of the French Resistance members. His seminary proved to be one of the most active centres in the French underground. When it was discovered by a Nazi spy at one point, 86 of its members were shot and 80 were deported. (Pere Milville was unfortunately indisposed when the remainder of the group visited the McGill campus yesterday.)

The party which arrived in Canada only this week are the guests of the Federal Government. They will visit the larger cities of Canada as far west as Winnipeg during their stay. Yesterday afternoon, following their informal visit to McGill, they went to the newly-opened International Service of the CBC to broadcast to France.

At McGill, they were shown the McGill Union, the Arts Building and the Library, and were welcomed by Dr. W. H. Hatcher, Assistant Dean, Professor J. L. Darbelnet, and Dr. G. R. Lomer.

Time and Tide

Hey, Joe!

Do you know who Joe is? No, I suppose if you don't know the backstage of Moyse Hall and the dramatic group of the English department very well, you won't know much more about him at all. He's become a sort of pass word now, and "Well, how's Joe today?" is a well worn phrase among the backstage gang. Joe is almost a symbol these days, of what, though, it's rather hard to say. He used to be a legend... but then, of course, you don't know who Joe is.

It all started last November when the English Department's production of Everyman began to get underway. On stage the hammers started banging and down in the costume room a group of girls and one man (yes, one man volunteered to sew), struggled desperately with the obstinate and unruly sackcloth that was to be made into the costumes. To get these made in time for the performance, each actor, apart from the men (the one who volunteered, faded away very inconspicuously after having sewn around two necks and three arm holes in three hours and pricking himself at least eleven times per hour) was assigned her own costume. Those not taking acting parts were to make the men's costumes and those of the "extras". One of these "extras" was Joe and it wasn't long, before the words "where's Joe?" became a well-worn query because somehow Joe never showed up to have his measurements taken. It was rather unfortunate that no one knew Joe for after all, you can't make a costume for someone you've never seen. Oh, excuse me, one person had seen Joe... the director of the play. "Well, let me see. He's about this high and about this wide... I think" and accompanying vague gestures of the hands was all the description given. And so a costume was made for Joe... about this high and just about this wide, or perhaps it wasn't quite this wide, but then it didn't matter because Joe never showed up. Finally the poor bewildered director was gazed at with awe and whispers such as "Do you really think she ever saw Joe?" were heard more than once. And so Joe became a legend.

Should you go backstage sometime during the next two weeks with the busy work of the second English Department production of "The Admirable" Continued on Page Four Polish democracy that it can command such sacrifice from the people who live under it? That is the pertinent question that will be answered today in Moyse Hall by Professor Oscar Halecki of the University of Warsaw, in his address on the foundation of Polish Democracy. Perhaps he will also offer some solution for the Polish position in the coming era. Halecki, who has lived and studied with this people, may be able to reveal the key-note for the establishment of their independence on a permanent basis.

From the Famous French Maquis

Pictured above before the Eglise de la Madeleine on the Rue Royale in Paris are the four members of the French Underground who are at present on an official visit to Canada. The party visited McGill yesterday and were welcomed by Dr. W. H. Hatcher, Assistant Dean of Arts and Science, Professor J. L. Darbelnet of the French Department, and Dr. G. R. Lomer chief librarian. They were filmed in front of the Arts Building by the National Film Board. Seen above from left to right are: 22-year-old Lieut. Denis Roussel, Father Milville, 23-year-old Nelly Bayot, and 36-year-old Lieut. Edouard Regnier.

The Story of John Goss, English Baritone

by Josette Marion

"John Goss is a born artist with intuitions and taste which must be inherent since they never could be merely acquired, and he has cultivated his gift until a song recital by him is an affair of unflagging interest and profit for the listener," writes Clin Downes of The New York Times.

Born in London, this popular English baritone attended Woodhouse Settlement School and then won a scholarship to Ruskin College, Oxford. His chosen profession was civil engineering, but the lure of music proved stronger than that of mechanics and he turned to singing as his profession. The wisdom of his choice was justified by the instantaneous success of his first performance. Goss's first engagement was with a touring concert party when, by chance, Victor Biegl heard the young singer and was enough impressed with his voice to offer to train him. Following this, Goss trained under Reinhold Von Warlich.

John Goss, as a concert performer, is unusual in the fact that he never attempted to make a career of oratorio or opera but has always remained a singer of songs. His concerts invariably contain music out of the common run. He has made an exhaustive study of lyric music and commands a repertoire of some 1200 songs from which he builds interesting and vivid programs. Among his repertoire may be found old English folk songs, modern English, French, Italian and Russian songs, German lieder, carols, sea shanties and in addition major works with orchestra.

His voice may be described as wonderfully skilled, naturally flexible and expressive, containing a sympathetic quality and great powers of sensitive interpretation. It lends itself to atmosphere, mood and style revealing impressive musicianship which strikes just the right note with its unaffected dignity and artistic restraint. He sings with sincerity and feeling, and the effortless flow and eminently listenable quality of his singing, the natural resonance, indubitable artistry, variations of tone color, and delightful humoresque contribute to

The Salzedo Ensemble will be the artists performing at the third concert in the current series of the chamber music concerts sponsored by the Montreal Festivals. The concert will be held tonight in the Prince of Wales Salon of the Windsor Hotel at 8.30 p.m.

The Ensemble consists of an unusual quartet. Carlos Salzedo, harpist, leads the group and the other members are Marjorie Call Salzedo, harpist, Ruth Freeman, flutist and Ana Drielle, cellist.

The program will include a pianoforte Sonata by Ravel which has been specially transcribed by Carlos Salzedo at the request of the composer. Other works will be the Introduction and Allegro for harp by Ravel, with Marjorie Call Salzedo, harpist with Mr. Salzedo at the piano; the sixth of Bach's French Suites; Handel's Suite in D major for flute, cello and two harps; the Adagio and Allegro from Luigi Boccherini's Concerto in A major; Scilicet and Burlesque for flute by Alfredo Casella and Mr. Salzedo's Scintillation for harp.

make him one of the most outstanding artists in his field. The friend of Delius, Warlock and Van Durin, he is an acknowledged interpreter of their works, and the refinement and purity of his diction carry most of his interpretations beyond the point of criticism.

John Goss is known throughout the English-speaking world not only as an exquisite singer, but as a great scholar and collector particularly in the field of English song literature, from the lutenists to contemporary composers. He edited the musical selection of the "Week End Book" which in 1924 commended the sophistication of Bloomsbury to a much wider circle, and followed it three years later with a popular community singing book. "Anthology of Song" is an epitome of his own concert repertoire and "Ballads of Britain" is another anthology, in the fields of folk-poetry and folk-song. He has also to his credit a novel — "Cockroaches and Diamonds" — published in 1937.

Within a few years after his debut, Mr. Goss was known throughout the British Isles as a singer of great distinction and concert tour of France and Germany increased his reputation. Since 1930, John Goss has been a familiar and popular figure on the concert platforms of Canada and the United States appearing with leading orchestras, choral societies, musical clubs and universities.

John Goss is to appear in a concert at R.V.C. on March 8th and will be accompanied by Bernard Naylor, the well known Canadian conductor, pianist and composer. This is the last concert which the Women's Union will present this year and all students are urged to attend, for it promises to be exceptionally interesting and entertaining.

Score Reads 23-21 for McGill Earle, Fineberg, Van Wagner Star in Intercollegiate Meet

The atmosphere in the stuffy N.D.G. Community pool was saturated with nerve-tingling anticipation as well as the natural moisture. The McGill Swimming Team was ahead by 23-21 over the Toronto Varsity crew with the results of the final event, the 200-yard free style relay, pending. Just as the exhibition water polo match was finished, the results arrived. But they seemed impossible.

If the tabulations are correct, then Western University, which had not placed in any of the previous events, came close to breaking a world record, and the Toronto natators seem to break all laws of mathematics, including that of averages. And so, awaiting the official results, the winner of the Intercollegiate Swim Meet remains unknown.

As far as the McGill end of the competition is concerned, there was some pretty swimming on the part of Coach Curran's water babies. Just for the records, in the 100-yard breast stroke race, Irwin Fineberg and Charlie Van Wagner, both Redmen, raced to a thrilling tie to a 1:17.1 time. The time of a similar event in the Dominion meet last summer was 1:17.3.

In the opening event of the meet, which was the three hundred yard medley relay, the Red squad of McCarthy, Van Wagner and MacLean came out on top by a four-second margin over the Toronto team. In the fifty yard free style, chubby Art Earle racked up an appreciable time of 26.1 seconds to lead the field. In the hundred yard backstroke race Varsity's Peterson edged out MacClean of McGill and Roberts of Queen's by quite a large difference.

In the fourth event, namely the hundred yards free style, Martin and Teskey of the Queen City's crew ran over the large field with Martin gaining the verdict with a 1:00.1 time. Then came the hundred yards breast stroke in which Fineberg and Van Wagner raced neck and neck to the aforementioned dead heat and were closely followed by Beer of Toronto. The results of the final event, however, are still not tabulated.

On the basis of the five official events the Redmen are the victors by two points, but if the seemingly absurd results of the two hundred yard free style relay are considered, the Varsity squad win the meet by a one point margin.

Med I Wins Interfaculty Basketball Championship

The Medicine 1 basketball team yesterday annexed the Interfaculty basketball championship by overpowering Engineering 11 by the score of 23-14. Thus, one of the most successful Interfaculty leagues in many years came to an end.

The issue was in doubt until the game had started. For on paper the two teams were even. Both Med and the Eng sophs had recently defeated the pre-tourney favorites, Engineering 1, by the same score, 30-25. So speculation as to the outcome was rife.

Slow Start
The game started slowly. Then the Med frosh, led by Colin Ramsey, the man who showed them the way to victory in their previous games, racked up ten straight points without an answer from the Plumbers. The beer-boys then settled down to some careful playing and managed to garner 8 points for the Doctors' 3 during the remainder of the first half. The score at half-time read 13-8 in favor of the boys from way up the hill.

In the second half, the Plumbers tried desperately to even up matters and uphold the honor of the Great Engineering Faculty. But the smooth-working Medicine aggregation could not be headed; at no time in the game was their lead even mildly threatened. The Plumbers were outscored in the second half by a two to one ratio, potting only six points to the Doctors' twelve. When the final whistle blew, the score stood at 25-14 and Medicine 1 was the newly-crowned McGill University Interfaculty basketball champions.

Ramsey Stars
By far the best man on the floor was Colin Ramsey. Ramsey came to McGill last year from Dalhousie and has made quite a name for himself in the short time he has been here. Colin will be remembered as the man who blazed his way into local sporting circles by winning the University tennis championship, and defeating two top-seeded stars to do so. Ramsey definitely proved to the Engineers that he also knows his way around a basketball court. He led the scoring parade with 9 points and played a strong defensive game as well.

Two other men who deserve no little credit for the Doctors' victory are Finlay and O'Neill. Morowitz of the Engineers led the losers in their futile struggle with six points.

Engineers Face Commerce Mon.

Final Tilt to Settle Interfaculty Champs. Rivalry Is at Peak

Facing each other in the second game of their two-game total-goal series, the Commerce boys again meet the Engineers in the Interfaculty Hockey championship this Monday at twelve-thirty. The first tilt between these two teams ended in a 2-2 draw, a game that was touch-and-go up to the last seconds of play.

Both of these teams have a strong line-up, and although the Plumbers beat the lads from Durvis twice during the season, they are finding the going rather tough in the finals. In the last game St. Jacques was the most outstanding player, netting both of the Commerce goals, whilst Kunigskis and Grant put in the two counters for the Plumbers.

This game on Monday will see the end of the Interfaculty league and rivalry is certainly high between the two teams, a direct result of the recent feud in the Daily and the immortal snow-ball fight which took place a few weeks ago.

Coeds To Play Mac In Basketball Tilt

Second Return Match At Currie Gymnasium Tomorrow Afternoon

On Saturday afternoon at three o'clock the McGill Coed Basketball squad takes on the girls from Macdonald in the Sir Arthur Currie Gym in the second game in which these two teams have played this year. The first tilt saw the McGill girls defeat the Aggie Coeds 22-13 when Elaine Fildes and Bobby Fenton led the team to their victory.

The McGill team will be chosen from the following: Bobby Fenton, Dorothy Helleur, Elaine Fildes, Anne Furness, Jean Fitzpatrick, Lois Smith, Patsy Scott, Phyllis Wood, Peggy Ann MacFarlane, Thea Hertzberg, Heddie Brown and Margaret Byles.

Since the McGill coeds have already won one game this year against this Macdonald outfit, and since they play with such stalwart performers as the Misses Fildes, Fenton and Helleur the girls from St. Anne's will have to be at the peak of their form to win this next game.

Spanish Show Presentation First of Kind

Department's Play By Student Actors Proves Success

The quick-stepping Mexican Hat Dance performed by two Mexican girls in brilliant sequined national costumes opened the Spanish Department's program last night, at Moyse Hall, the first production of this kind that has taken place at McGill.

Special guest at the show was Senor Trejo, Consul General for Mexico. Spanish was the language of the evening, as snatches of conversation could be heard. Professor Robina Henry welcomed the large and enthusiastic audience which was present, and expressed the hope that the performance had stimulated the study of Spanish.

The main item of the evening was the one act play, "Rosina es Frágil," which was well done, and Cicely Ambridge deserves special mention for playing the long and arduous part of Rosina with never-flagging interest. She was present on the stage nearly the whole time. Robert Cockfield also portrayed her young uncle with understanding.

All the actors were realistic, especially "Teresita," the abandoned village girl, played by Jacqueline Thimmes, who was very convincing as the high tempered and revengeful rival of Rosina, who was determined to throw vitriol in Rosina's face, for enticing her fiancé away from her.

Mrs. Henry's work on the production is fully appreciated, and we hope that McGill's Spanish Department will provide entertainment and instruction again for us in the future.

Under the direction of Leon Davicho, the first part of the program, devoted to variety, moved at a lively pace, with Lya Popper aiding and abetting the proceedings as M.C.

Rodolfo Gurdian with his guitar played and sang four songs, representative of different countries. A Costa Rican song was sung first, and after cries of "Mas," and "otra" he responded with "Tabu," an Afro-Cuban's lament for his homeland. A Columbian song was sung later and "La Ranchera," an Argentine cowboy song.

Two short skits were done by Monica Bendzaitis and Neil Milroy, and Lya Popper and Clayton Procope respectively. The first dealt with the amusing incident of a cure writing a love letter for an illiterate country girl, and the second portrayed the ordeal of an oral exam in Spanish, with the pupil vainly giving excuses for not having learned his lessons.

A song of the Spanish province of Leon and a Mexican birthday song, "Las Maninitas," the equivalent of "Happy Birthday to You," were sung by a sextet.

Mr. Shenstone, who is one of the leaders in sponsoring gliding in Canada, has participated in gliding activities in Great Britain, Poland, Italy and France. He will discuss both the joys and problems of the sport.

The meeting will include a report by John Agnew on the new soaring site at Oka, which has been selected by members of the technical committee, and the final presentation of the constitution discussed at the last meeting.

Copies of the first issue of the McGill Gliding Club's monthly bulletin will be distributed at the meeting. Members unable to attend may obtain copies at the Tuck

Five Canadians Make All Stars

The champion Canadians of the National Hockey League placed five of the six men on the 1944-45 all-star team announced today by the Sporting News.

Two Canadian stars, Bill Durnon, goalie, and Maurice Richard, right winger, who has just set a new all-time scoring record with 45 goals in a single season, were unanimous choices.

The other players on the first team were Bill Hollett of Detroit, defense; Emile Bouchard, Montreal, defense; Elmer Lach, Montreal, centre, and Hector (Toe) Blake of Montreal, left wing.

The second-team selections were Frank McCool of Toronto, goalie; Earl Seibert of Detroit and Babe Pratt of Toronto, defense; Bill Cowley of Boston, centre; and Bill Mosienko of Chicago and Dave (Sweeney) Schriner of Toronto, wingmen.

Interfaculty Swim Meet To Be Held Thursday

The Interfaculty swimming meet will be held on Thursday, March 8, at 5:15 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus pool. Events will be classed as novice and open; members of the McGill Swimming team will not be permitted to race in the novice class.

Novice events include races in Free style, Back and Breast stroke, all of fifty yards. The same events are to be held in the Open class, only the races will be one hundred yards. In addition to this will be a competition in diving from the low board and interfaculty relay races, the first being seventy-five yards in a medley of styles and the second is one hundred yards Free style.

Commerce Team Goes to Mac.

The Commerce Volleyball team is moving out to St. Anne's to meet the Aggie squad today when they play in the semi-finals of the Interfaculty Volleyball league. The winner in this game is to meet the Engineering 1 team for the championship. The squad is leaving from Bonaventure station at 5.15 this afternoon.

The Commerce aggregation will be composed of George Frank, Seymour Finklestein, Harold Flegel, Herb Shayne, Marvin Shiller and Bruce Becker. Frank and Shayne have been starring throughout the season for these boys, whilst the Macdonald farmers are sparked by the play of Mendel and Jones.

Co-ed Squash Tourney Starts Next Wednesday

The much-awaited and long-heralded co-ed squash tourney is scheduled to begin on Wednesday, March 7th at the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium. The girls have been practising at the local courts for some time now and if shape is any criterion, the competition will be keen.

A list for all the aspiring entrants is posted on the R.V.C. Physical Education notice board, and all those entering are asked to sign before next Monday, March 5th.

The points will be awarded on an intersection basis and those in charge have asked for maximum participation. Many similar meets have been held in the past by the co-eds which displayed some high talent and this year's tourney should be no exception.

Coeds to Enter Meet at Baldy

Among the nine Canadian girls participating in the ski meets this weekend at Mt Baldy are Dee and Margaret Burden and Joan Stanforth, all of McGill. These three girls are racing along with Gaby Pleau, the Wurtele sisters, Ann Orr, Joan Tyler and Jaqueline Tracey against a team from the Eastern United States.

This group went down to Pico Peak in Vermont last month to show their skill, and are now playing hosts to the best girl skiers the Eastern U.S. can dig up. These Coeds have shown up well in previous competitions this winter and are expected to place high in the standings this weekend.

Soddy's Work Is Topic of Address

Dr. F. A. Panet addressed the student branch of the C.I.C. recently. The speaker was introduced by Mr. R. Butler, President of the society. Dr. Panet, who spoke on "Research on the Chemical Behavior of Radio Elements since the work of Soddy" stated that he was very glad to speak to students of this university especially since he heard a great deal about McGill from Soddy himself. Soddy, it was pointed out, was associated with McGill where he met Rutherford, with whom he worked for a while. Dr. Panet stated that the work done by Soddy was of immense importance in the field of radio active elements and any advances made since his time are dwarfed in comparison. The study of the chemical behavior of these elements were studied with extremely dilute solutions, and for this reason alone research on this subject is extremely interesting. The speaker then told of the experimental data obtained on the absorption and precipitation of thorium, radium, and polonium in various solutions. He then pointed out some of the discoveries of such men as Hahn, Kurbator, Godlenski, Harrington and Fleck. Dr. Panet then concluded with the statement that the radiation effects of radio elements will provide interesting work for future generations. The speaker was thanked by James Raymond.

Athletics Festivals. For this summer's meeting of the C.I.A.U., I would press our representatives to consider seriously the return of inter-collegiate sports for the coming year if the war continues its present trend.

The president assumes the chair of the Students' Executive Council. This is perhaps the most continuous duty of the president. The Council rapid service at lunch. The addition of a milk-machine to the snack-bar approves all organization and all expenditures from the Students' Society funds. This then entails an understanding of the organization and aims of the various clubs and societies which comprise campus life. It is also the duty or the responsibility of the council to organize social functions in which the student body may participate "en masse". This viewpoint has been neglected to a certain extent during the war years, but more activities of this nature may be carried on during the coming year. The organization of the War Council, an effective and vital instrument in the enhancement of the student war effort, is another commendable project of the Executive Council, which should be carried on until the need is exhausted.

Through the secretaryship of the McGill Union and actual residence in the building for a year, I have made contact with most of the clubs and societies on the campus, which use the building. An insight into the workings and the purposes of these clubs is necessary for a general understanding of the features of student interest.

The freshman reception program should be more varied, and designed to initiate the freshmen and freshettes into the college atmosphere. This may be accomplished by a more satisfactory explanation of the history and honoured traditions of 'Old McGill' and by a complete campus tour, led by a group of seniors. The coming year may prove to be the first of the transition years in which the campus will be in constant state of flux. A considerable amount of post-war planning to improve the lot of the student will be necessary. Veterans should be encouraged to participate to the fullest extent in student life, so that their college days should be as full as possible.

A most important responsibility of the president is that of representation. The president represents the student body to the university authorities, to the graduate society, and to the general public.

I fully realize the responsibilities that the president has towards the student body. I have stressed the most important of these, and if you should place your confidence in me, I shall serve the Students' Society to the best of my ability. I would cite my activities for preceding years:

Students' Executive Council '44-'45.
Secretary of the McGill Union '44-'45.

Students' Athletic Council '43-'45.
Senior Basket Ball Manager '43-'44.

Chairman of Festival Committee I, II, III
Engineering Undergraduate Executive '44-'45.

Freshman reception Committee '44-'45.

Med-Plumbers Ball Committee '43-'45.

sary facilities for appreciation of the arts and for studying the everyday problems of life. More than ever now, these groups must cooperate to a greater degree than they have done before, in order that all students may benefit in their years at college through contact with persons of a different way of life, and thus learn to be tolerant.

Should you, the student body, then feel that I am worthy of your support, and thus worthy to be your leader, I pledge myself to work unceasingly, together with you, towards the goal of greater tolerance and mutual co-operation, so that the student body of McGill University may become a homogeneous group; composed of the existing several and individual societies.

tion, viz, "to promote the social, cultural, and intellectual interests of the women students, and to encourage understanding among its members."

War Program.
In the spring of 1944 the Women's Union assumed complete responsibility for the Women's War Service Program. If I am elected President of the Women's Union I propose to continue the present program giving it the major position among student activities. I shall endeavor at all times to maintain a high degree of enthusiasm toward war services among the women students.

Cultural Activities.
Recognizing the value and importance to the student body of extra-curricular cultural activities I propose the following:

1. To continue the present plan of musical concerts for students, and if possible to increase their number.

2. To sponsor lectures on musical appreciation similar to those being given at the present time.

3. To continue sponsoring Art Exhibitions in the R.V.C. common room.

4. To continue classes in Arts and Crafts similar to those being given at the present time.

5. To support in every way possible the cultural clubs and societies under the sponsorship of the Women's Union.

Social and Recreational Activities.
In this regard I propose the following:

1. To give my fullest co-operation and support to the MWSAA, the functioning of which is entirely familiar to me in view of my term in its presidency.

2. To sponsor Social functions which will serve as a means of

3. To give my complete support to the Freshie Reception Committee.

4. To sponsor a Christmas Dance similar to that successfully held in 1944.

5. To co-operate with the MWSAA in sponsoring the annual Co-ed Coast.

6. To promote greater interest in the annual Senior Dinner for graduating students.

Business and Publicity.
In this regard I propose the following:

1. To encourage the attendance of all concerned to the Round Table Conferences and to endeavor to stimulate among the women students a more enthusiastic desire to be present at the annual and semi-annual meetings.

2. To endeavor as a member of the Students' Executive Council to keep before that body the interests and ideals of the Women's Union.

3. To do my utmost as a member of the War Council Executive to ensure that body of the full co-operation of the Women's Union.

4. To co-operate with the Women's Editor of the McGill Daily in giving wide publicity to all the activities of the Women's Union, thus enlightening the student body as to the place and importance of the Women's Union on the university campus.

If I am elected to the presidency of the Women's Union I shall endeavor to put into effect this suggested program keeping before me the interests of those I represent. My experience during the past session as a member of the Women's Union Executive satisfies me as to the feasibility of this program and makes me confident of my ability to carry it out.

posters, but also by each member telling others about the Union and its functions.

As university students, we have a unique opportunity not only of acquiring academic knowledge, but of sharing interests, both cultural and social, which are common to all of us. McGill is not intended to be a technical institute, but a centre of learning in its broadest and best sense.

The Women's Union provides our greatest opportunity for realizing this, and so we must consistently work towards enlarging and unifying it. Our policy should be to make students more aware of the Union and of their responsibility towards an organization which they automatically support financially.

With this end in view, we might, for example, form a council to assist new students at the beginning of the year. This council should be composed of students in different faculties and with varied interests, to be an informal source of information concerning university affairs and campus activities. The difficulties of getting organized on first coming to a university are well recognized, but this is one way in which we might lessen the confusion. A council of this sort would be of particular help to girls whose homes are not in Montreal.

As to integrating the Union, great progress has been made this year. Scotty Watson is doing an excellent job in co-ordinating the various clubs and activities, and uniting them in the wider sphere of the Union as a whole. It still remains to increase this co-operation. One way of doing this might be to have fraternities officially represented at Women's Union meetings. Fraternities play an important part in campus life, which is all the more reason why they should be kept in close contact with the Women's Union.

By uniting the women students in this way, we can then more clearly look beyond the Union itself, and beyond McGill to the community. The war service program helped in this way, and the formation of the Handicrafts group is a particularly important beginning along these lines. Handicraft training has a direct bearing on the immediate problem of disabled ex-service men, and here is a concrete opportunity of helping in a field which is not exclusively confined to the university.

We must enlarge and unify the Women's Union, and thence, through it, learn to serve the community. This is the policy which I advocate as the responsibility and privilege of the President for the coming year.

Einstein's Theory of Relativity Explained to Science Club

By G. O. K.

Yesterday afternoon in the R.V.C. Common Room, Dr. Gillson, Professor of Mathematics, addressed the Science Club on the subject of Einstein's Theory of Relativity.

Dr. Gillson traced the development of this theory, including the contributions of Copernicus and Newton. The discovery that the velocity of light is the same for all observers served to stimulate a great deal of research, and many explanations were attempted. It was upon this problem that Einstein built his theory of Restricted Relativity. Later he attempted to extend this to cover space and gravity, and was able to do this through the use of non-Euclidian geometries.

Einstein concluded that space and time are dependent on the observer, and the units would change if our velocity approached that of light. This has actually been shown to be the case in experiments with betas and electrons. He also concluded that gravitating matter in space destroys the Euclid geometry around it, and this was substantiated in 1919, when it was proved that light rays in space are bent by the sun. Dr. Gillson's discussion was extremely clear, and we are tempted to say, "Elementary, my dear Watson."

A STUDENT'S SOLOQUY

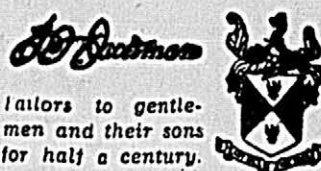

To flunk or not to flunk that is the question.
Whether it is nobler on your part To suffer the shame of error because you flunked,
Or to take books against a sea of ignorance,
And by their use to pass.
To play, to flunk, and by that flunk to say
You end the struggles and the thousand sleepless nights

That you have suffered;
To work, to write, to write, perchance to flunk.
Aye there's the rub; for in that outside world
What things may come,
When you have shuffled off this comely campus.
And though your meagre labors have not won,
Don't, mind, your country needs

NEILSON'S

WHITHER THOU?

What wouldst thou have? But think!
Drink hoarsely from the Cup of Sins and Flesh,
Or superciliously disdain, and with bleak eyes
Look out upon a barren world of dust-bestrewn delights?
Take honorless thy sated bulk to flaring flames of hell,
Or bodiless thy parched-out hungry soul to what thy soul
Knows not?

What dost thou think? Ah, reconsider well!
The moon is love's red orbit in the star-brushed skies at night,
Rises through the bare treetops
